KNOWN AS MAYOR BLACK

Indianapolis News Correspondent

Details History of City Administration and its Antics.

W. H. Blodgett, special correspondent of the Indianapolis News, who was here Wednesday, beat the bushes enough to get a fairly good political story concerning municipal politics. He details the incidents in the chain that has brought the city administration into disrepute, many of which have seen the light of publicity already. Listen to what he found in Rushville:

The old line Democratic boss here is John Kelly, who is also street commissioner and brother-in-law of Mayor B. A. Black. And Mr. Kelly and Mr. Black are the local representatives of the Thomas Taggart-Crawford Fairbanks machine, although Terre Haute beer is not connected with the present administration. The beer that used to be served here is made in Cincinnati and Indianapolis. The slogan of the Kelly-Black branch of the Indianapolis machine is spoils, and the guy that can do the best work in his precinct is the guy that gets the jobs that the machine has to give out.

Dr. C. H. Parsons is a Democrat and a member of the council. He is a Woodrow Wilson-William Jennings Bryan Democrat. He believes that Democrats should have the offices, provided they are fit for the place—if they are competent and capable, honest and worthy, and he does not measure a man's ability to hold an office by the work he does in his precinct. So, because of his belief, Councilman Parsons is not on good terms with the local machine and the fight he has made against it—and the victories he has won, for that matter—have set the people of Rushville to thinking.

The sentiment is growing stronger every day in favor of a business man's ticket and it is openly asserted that if a first class business man can be prevailed upon to accept the nomination for mayor the people will elect him, regardless of the party ticket he runs on. The people here are in revolt against boss rule and are anxious for a business administration of their affairs. And the revelations that have come out of the fight that Dr. Parsons is making is causing them to be all the more anxious.

The manner in which the machine works down here on a small scale is just the way it works in Indianapolis on a large scale, should it get in control there as it is here.

The first thing that Dr. Parsons ran up against after he was elected was a proposition that the Democratic city officers should get together the evening before the regular council meeting, agree on a program and carry it out at the meeting of the council, regardless of the Republicans.

To this Dr. Parsons objected, on the ground that there is no politics in the city's business any more than there is in the practicing of medicine or selling groceries. The mayor, by the way, is a grocer. He declared that he would not stand for anything like that; that all business must be transacted in the council and not in a caucus. The machine was a little afraid of the doctor and that plan was not carried out. The next thing was the slate.

Mayor Black prepared a list of those he proposed to appoint to office

CASE AGAIN POSTPONED

Mrs. West Ill and Unable to Appear in Court.

A physician's certificate stating that she was unable to appear in court, caused the postponement again of the trial of Mrs. Frank West in Indianapolis yesterday. The case was to have been called yesterday before Judge Collins in police court but the certificate presented by Mrs. West's bondsman caused another postponement. This is the third time the case has been postponed. The case is now set for trial the first of next week. Mrs. West, it is understood, is ill.

NONE HURT WHEN CAR LEAVES TRACK

I. & C. Interurban Was Traveling at Moderate Rate Thus Averting a Serious Accident.

CONNERSVILLE CURVE MISHAP

The 10:50 inbound car on the I. & C. traction left the track at the corner of Sixth and Western avenue Wednesday night, says the Connersville News. The car was traveling at moderate speed, which perhaps prevented a serious accident. The rear trucks left the track while making the curve and the after trucks passed over the street and struck a telephone pole with great force.

There were a number of passengers on board, but none was hurt, except by being severely shaken up. The car was but slightly damaged. It is said a small piece of board lying on the rails was the cause of the accident. Workmen were called to the scene at once and soon had the trucks on the rails. This is the second accident of this kind within a month. A car was derailed near Eighth street about three weeks ago on account of a low place in the track.

The accident made a fearful noise and attracted a lot of people from the neighborhood to the scene.

NEW SURVEY FOR I. & C. BEING MADE

Arrangements Being Made at Harrison, O., to Put Proposed Route
Out of High Water Danger.

WILL BE SHORTER ROUTE, TOO

Lewis Henry and his corps of engineers are at the Central hotel, says the Harrison (O.) Journal. A new survey is being made for the Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction company which skirts the north corporation line, crossing at the Zera Arnold farm, following the hill tops across the O'Rourke farm, thence around Glen Haven and the Schott subdivision, coming to the pike at Capt. Wilson's place above town. This would be a more direct route than the former one and would put the line entirely beyond the danger of high water. The only place on the entire route which was affected by the flood was the line as surveyed between Longnecker's and Harrison. The new survey will place the entire line out of any such danger.

WATSON FAVORS PARTY CHANGES

In Terre Haute Speech He Commends Action of Recent Meeting in Chicago.

PREDICTS SUCCESS IN FUTURE

Once More He Modestly Declines
"Tender" of Presidency—With Cannon is Banquet Headliner

The James E. Watson boom for president was given another big boost Tuesday night in Terre Haute at the banquet of the Vigo county Republican club. But as usual Mr. Watson declined the honor sought to be thrust upon him. I. W. Richardson, toastmaster at the banquet, started the boom anew when he suggested that Indianans hoped to see him in the white house. Mr. Watson exclaimed "It can never be."

Mr. Watson and "Uncle Joe" Cannon divided honors in the speaking line at the banquet. The Terre Haute Tribune has the following to say concerning Mr. Watson's speech:

It was a characteristic "Jim" Watson speech, in which he went to great length in describing what he said were the four fundamental principles that had made the Republican party great, a sound currency, internal improvements, protection and human equality. He said the record of the party in promoting these four principles that had brought about the wonderful prosperity of the country, was such that no new party is needed to still further exemplify the principles. The speaker commended the action of the recent meeting in Chicago to bring about the reorganization of the party in demanding a change in the basis of representation from the south, but he said that they were several years late. The effort had been made in 1904 and again in 1903 to secure this change, and in the convention of the latter year, he said, Senator Cummings, who now clamors for it, had voted against the proposition. But he said, he welcomed their efforts, and those who had clung to the old ship would stretch out the glad hand to those who had left it when the weather seemed dark and the going bad. He said he preferred, however, that if the Republican party is to be reorganized, if it needs reorganization the work should be in the hands of those who had been voting the Republican ticket and not with those who had declared that while they were Republicans they could not vote the ticket. The speaker predicted the success of the party in the future because its principles are founded on justice, and in closing paid a most glowing tribute to "Uncle Joe," with whom he said he had lived for fourteen years, and had traversed the country from one end to the other, preaching the doctrines they believed in. "We will believe in them," he said, "and, my friends, should I die tonight, the main thing I should want you to think of me would be that I have been true to the faith, that I have preserved the Ark of the Covenant."

The Epworth League of the Gowdy M. E. church will give a literary program at the church next Saturday night.

The Willing Workers of the St. Paul M. E. church will hold an exchange in the Logan building, corner of Main and Fourth streets, tomorrow morning from 9 to 12 o'clock.

SUPREME COURT LIMITS SALOONS

Fraction of Unit Does Not Entitle to License as Statute is Specific.

TWO SIMILAR TO LOCAL CASE

Judge Blair's Decision is Upheld Also
by Jackson County Circuit Court

At least two cases, similar to the Basil Seward saloon case tried here, have been decided within the last week and in both cases the courts held exactly as did Judge Blair in the local case. One of the cases was decided by the supreme court and the other by Frank S. Jones of Columbus, sitting as special judge in the Jackson circuit court.

The supreme court held that when the board of county commissioners fixed the number of inhabitants to a saloon at one thousand, no license can be granted unless there are fully one thousand inhabitants to the unit of division more than those for the saloons already established. The supreme court decision was based on the one saloon to each thousand inhabitants while that in the Jackson circuit court was on the 500 inhabitants as a unit.

Both cases were similar to the Seward case and with the supreme court deciding as it did there can be little question now as to whether Judge Blair was right. The decision of the local court was in every way upheld by the decisions in the cases this week. The supreme court case was from Martinsville. That city has a population of 6,375 and because of the fraction of one thousand inhabitants Jacob Ferguson contended that he was entitled to a license. The appeal was taken when the court found for the county commissioners.

The supreme court in discussing the case says:

"If relator's (Ferguson's) theory be correct, then if a municipal area embraces less than five hundred inhabitants or only one inhabitant, a license must, upon proper qualified application, issue, or if it contains 501 or 1,001 inhabitants, in case the limitation is imposed by boards of commissioners, two licenses may be issued. Relator's theory ignores the unit—the limitation as we understand it is one license for each one thousand inhabitants; that is, that the unit to entitle to a license must be a full unit, and not a fraction, and that fractions of a unit are to be ignored. Any other construction would nullify the provisions of a statute which seems plain in intent, and in terms. If it had been intended to permit licenses for any fraction of a unit of population, it would have been easy by apt words to have so provided, and the fact that a unit of population is fixed, exclude a fraction in the absence of provisions therefore, for it is necessarily a declaration in itself that licenses shall be governed by the unit and not by fractions."

WILL MEET IN OXFORD.

The next meeting of the Union District Medical Association will be held in Oxford, October 4. This was decided at the semi-annual meeting held yesterday in Liberty. At the Oxford meeting officers will be elected. The local physicians who attended the meeting yesterday report a good time and an excellent program.

The Faithful Workers class of the Christian Sunday school will hold an exchange in the Davis & Jones millinery store in Main street tomorrow morning.

EPIDEMIC OF RESIGNING

Home Employees Follow Example of Superintendent Ryan.

An epidemic of resigning has struck the employees of the Sailors' and Soldiers' Home, located between Carthage and Knightstown. Following the lead of Superintendent Ryan, who resigned May 1, Ed Byrket, farmer at the home; Jefferson Reddick, carpenter; Claude Merrill, laundryman; Mrs. Grubbs, head of the sewing department. Only two of the places have been filled. Within the last four months, it is stated, four band masters for the Home band have been employed.

PROVES A CASE OF BIG COURT CALIBRE

Squire Kratzer Finds for Oneal Bros. in $33 Account Suit Against Four Defendants.

ANOTHER PHASE DEVELOPED.

The account suit of Oneal Brothers against Dr. Tell C. Waltermire, of Indianapolis, formerly of Manilla, his wife, Maude Waltermire, Belle Bebout, of Manilla, and Lafayette Johnson, for $33, which was heard by Squire Kratzer late yesterday afternoon, developed into a case of circuit court calibre before it was finished. It did not take Squire Kratzer long to decide that judgment was due the plaintiffs, but another angle of the case developed.

Dr. Waltermire claimed that he had settled his share of the account with Mr. Johnson and showed a receipt to substantiate his allegation. Interlineation had been made to support the claim, but attorneys for Mr. Johnson asserted that this was false and Squire Kratzer found against Dr. Waltermire. Sam Trabue appeared for the plaintiffs, John Titsworth for Mr. Johnson and Will McCoolin for Dr. Waltermire and the other defendants. The case was originally filed before the court of Squire Dora at Glenwood, but he died and the case was transferred to the local squire's court.

11 ACTS PERTAIN TO THE HIGHWAYS

Eight of This Number Are Amendments Which Make Great Changes in Existing Laws.

SEVERAL CONCERNING PAVING

Brick, Bitumen and Macadam Added to Statute Concerning the Improvement of Highways.

Eleven acts of the last legislature pertain to highways. Eight of the number are amendments to existing laws. Some of the amendments are important in that they have to do with improvements that will be made here in the future.

Senate Bill 271 (Chapter 226), approved March 14, amends Section 6 of Acts 1911, Page 49, which authorized the purchase of toll roads to be paid for by a tax on the townships into or through which such roads extend. A proviso is added "that in case a township in which there is located a toll road is in debt beyond the constitutional limit, or which the purchase of such toll road would put the debt of such township more than the constitutional limit, then the board of commissioners of such county may, whenever in their judgment the public interest will be subserved thereby, pay the whole of the cost of purchasing such gravel or toll road out of the general funds of the county in which such road is situated."

House Bill 721 (Chapter 338), approved March 15, amends Section 62 of the act concerning highways (Burns, 1908, Sec. 7711), so as to make it apply to straightening highways, as well as laying out and improving them; and so as to make it apply to a highway in any "township," as well as in one township. House Bill 473 (Chapter 345) approved March 15, amends Section 23 of Acts 1905, Page 529, concerning highways (Burns 1908, Sec. 7671). The amendment consists of the insertion in the section of a provision for joint action by the county officers of counties in this and any adjoining state, in the selection of a highway superintendent who shall hold his office subject to joint control and removal by the officers of such counties.

NO COMPROMISE ON THE WOOL SCHEDULE

The President Makes Known His Attitude.

Washington, May 16.—While Leader Underwood of the house was acknowledging that the sugar and wool producing industries of the country might not be able to survive under the competitive conditions imposed by the new tariff program, President Wilson was serving notice that he was not looking for nor accepting any compromises on these important features of the tariff bill. These developments, together with an agreement reached by the senate to vote today on the proposition of holding hearings on the Underwood bill are the latest in the tariff situation.

President Wilson showed that he was considerably aroused over reports that he was ready to assent to a compromise for a moderate duty on wool. The president denied this most vigorously.

"I am not the kind that considers compromises when I once take my position," was the significant way in which the president stated his present attitude of mind.

"I have taken my stand with the house leaders for the present bill," said the president, "and I am not looking for or accepting compromises."

Confederate Veterans Honor a Northerner's Memory.

A TRIBUTE FROM THE SOUTH

In Recognition of the Kindness That Met Them While Prisoners of War at Indianapolis in 1862, Confederate Veterans After Lapse of Half a Century Will Mark Their Devotion to Memory of Colonel Richard Owen.

Indianapolis, May 16.—Typifying the best patriotic feeling of both the north and the south, a beautiful sentiment is being displayed by S. A. Cunningham of Nashville, Tenn., editor and proprietor of the Confederate Veteran, who has arrived in Indianapolis to complete arrangements for placing a bronze bust memorial to Colonel Richard Owen of the Union forces during the civil war, in the Indiana capitol building as a tribute from the Confederate veterans who were prisoners in Camp Morton, Indianapolis, in 1862, and their friends.

Mr. Cunningham, who was one of Colonel Owen's Confederate prisoners at Camp Morton, was in conference with Governor Ralston and others concerning the plans for the ceremonies connected with the placing of the memorial, June 9.

It is probable that the G. A. R. veterans will take part in the ceremonies and join with Confederate veterans in doing honor to the memory of Colonel Owen, who was kind and considerate to the southern prisoners in his charge. Among the visitors will be Mr. Cunningham; Miss Belle Kinney of New York, the sculptor who designed the bust; General Bennett H. Young of Louisville, commander-in-chief of the Confederate Veterans, and members of the Owen family.

Governor Ralston is to make the opening address of welcome. General Young, on behalf of the Confederate veterans, will present the memorial, and Vice President Marshall will make the speech of acceptance for the state of Indiana. The bust is a strong, artistic work, and excellently portrays the kindly and yet soldierlike features of Colonel Owen, who was a member of the famous New Harmony (Ind.) family. It will be placed in a niche at the southeast corner of the central portion of the corridor near the entrance to the governor's office.

Mr. Cunningham is one of the best known Confederate veterans in the south, and has raised $3,000 among Confederate veterans and their friends for the Owen memorial. The most delightful thought in connection with the undertaking, he says, is that the Confederate veterans are in thorough sympathy with it and not a word of criticism has come from anywhere in the south.

It was with tears in his eyes that Mr. Cunningham related with gratitude the kindness with which Colonel Owen treated the 4,200 Confederate prisoners sent to Indianapolis for safe keeping after the capture of Fort Donelson by the Union forces.

This Was the Plea of Man Who Murdered Policeman.

Princeton, Ind., May 16.—Walter Brocail, slayer of Harrison Hitch, a policeman, was brought here from Vincennes, rushed from the train in an automobile loaded with policemen and immediately arraigned in court, where he pleaded not guilty to first degree murder, saying he had no recollection of the crime.

THAW TELLS A JURY OF ALLEGED BRIBERY

Lawyer On Trial as a Go-Between.

New York, May 16.—A jury in the criminal branch of the supreme court heard Harry K. Thaw tell how he paid John Nicholson Anhut, a young lawyer, $25,000 in securities and cash to obtain his release from Matteawan hospital for the criminal insane. Anhut was to get only a small part of this money, $2,500 or $5,000, and the balance was to go to "reimburse" Dr. John Russell, then superintendent of the institution. Thaw has received back $14,700 of this money.

Thaw, made a keener and more alert witness than he has ever made before, according to all who have seen him on the witness stand since he was acquitted of the murder of Stanford White on the ground of insanity. The questions of counsel for Anhut, on trial on a charge of bribery, did not succeed in rattling the witness, who testified that Dr. Russell had told him that a lawyer would come to see him who would act for him (Russell) and discuss the matter of release. Thaw had talked to Russell about this. Thaw then went into details of his talk with Anhut, who had told him, the witness testified, that Dr. Russell's terms were $25,000. Witness told Anhut the amount surprised him, and he asked Anhut if that was the least Dr. Russell would take, and Anhut said it was.

"How much was Anhut to get out of this?"

"I do not remember exactly, but he said either $2,500 or $5,000."

"What proceedings were to be undertaken?"

"Mr. Anhut said he and Dr. Russell had told me before that it was only necessary for the superintendent to lead me to the door, pronounce me sane and let me go."

RHEUMATISM PAINS GO Swollen Joints VANISH

RHEUMA Acts on Kidneys, Liver and Blood the First Day—and Out Goes Uric Acid Poison.

Anybody can afford to pay 50 cents to get rid of terrible Rheumatism, Sciatica or Gout, and that's all RHEUMA costs at Johnson's Drug Store and they say if it doesn't do all that is claimed for it, money back. It's wonderful how speedily this simple remedy takes hold and how the sore muscles limber up and the swollen joints come down to normal. Make no mistake—RHEUMA costs but little, but it's the best remedy you can find to drive Rheumatic poison from the system and bring back health to misery-racked bodies.

"I had Rheumatism for a long while, and tried many medicines, but was not cured until I used RHEUMA. I cannot praise RHEUMA too highly. My advice to those suffering from Rheumatism is to use this great remedy, as I believe it will effect a permanent cure in any case."—C. B. Lanham, Sattes, W. Va., April 27, 1912.

WOULD REVISE THE CURRENCY

President Wilson at Work On Such a Measure.

ENGAGES AN ACADEMICIAN

For the Purpose of Getting Before Congress a Scientific Presentation of the Subject of Currency Revision, the President Has Secured the Services of an Eminent Professor of Political Economy to Prepare a Bill.

Washington, May 16.—Academic assistance for the drafting of an administration currency revision bill has been secured by President Wilson. He has chosen a professor of political economy in one of the largest eastern universities whose name is withheld, to be the actual author of the measure, and the work of drafting it is now going on. The president expects the bill will have been finished and put in his hands within a week or ten days for informal submission to the chairman of the currency committee of the house and the senate and the cabinet members who are being consulted.

The president acknowledged that a general agreement had been reached between himself and the congressional leaders as to the subject matter of the reforms to be attempted in this bill.

The fact that the president had asked for Mr. Bryan's views on the rough draft of the bill which was submitted last week has not been generally known. It has been authoritatively stated, however, that Mr. Bryan, whose platform in 1908 called for a government guarantee of bank deposits, has been asked to express himself on the needs of currency reform at this later date. The president himself, though, has removed the guarantee of deposits from the range of possibilities for the bill by declaring that it was something that had no part in a real currency revision measure.

From what has already been learned it is believed the decision has been reached to present to congress a bill which will carry four general provisions. They are:

1. A regional reserve system instead of the central system condemned by the national platform.
2. The gradual substitution of a currency secured by short time commercial paper of the highest grades for the present bond secured national banknotes.
3. The adoption of the old Democratic pledge for the selection of government depositaries on a basis of competitive bidding.
4. A thorough revision of the administrative features of the national bank act with the view of reconciling these portions of the law with the conditions which will arrive from the operation of the law.

It is understood that some of the amendments covered by the last section will affect the concentration of the reserve. It also is understood that the plan being considered by the president is to substitute for the present 2 per cent securities, securities bearing interest at 3 per cent.

President Wilson, it is understood, has submitted these rough plans to his chosen academician with the instruction that they be formulated into a bill.

Say New Ambassador Is Unfriendly to Them.

London, May 16.—At a meeting last evening the London Trades Council adopted a resolution protesting

Mrs. Sickly — "Oh, dear Anty Drudge, don't think I'm lazy, neglecting my wash this way, but I sprained my back lifting the washboiler this morning and I can't move for the pain."

Anty Drudge — "I don't think you're lazy. I think you're plain foolish. The idea of boiling and hard-rubbing clothes when you can use Fels-Naptha Soap and have an easy day."

Throw away your wash boiler and try Anty Drudge's way. Soap your clothes well with Fels-Naptha and put them in cool or lukewarm water for about thirty minutes while you do something else.

Come back, rub them lightly, rinse and hang them out. Then go and sit down for a few minutes before you have to get dinner, and think how easy your washing was today.

Serve the Meat and Fish as the Famous Caterers do—

A much more attractive dish is served when the fish or meat is properly garnished with an appropriate jelly. This jelly is easily and quickly made with Knox Gelatine, and the resulting dainty appearance and relish of the course amply rewards the effort. Try this relish for tonight's dinner.

Meat or Fish Relish

1/4 envelope Knox Sparkling Gelatine. 1/4 cup vinegar.
1/4 cup cold water. 1/4 cup celery seed, mustard seed.
Chopped cabbage and onion to make 2 cups. 1/4 cup sugar.

Soak gelatine in cold water and dissolve in hot vinegar. Add sugar, salt and other ingredients, and mold in individual molds lined with pimentos.

Two Packages—Fruit and Acidulated. Both Making Two Quarts (1/2 gallon) of Jelly. With the Plain Sparkling, lemons are used for flavoring; but with the Acidulated package comes an envelope of concentrated lemon juice—a great convenience when too busy to squeeze lemons. Both contain a tablet for coloring.

against the appointment of Walter H. Page as United States ambassador to the court of St. James on the ground of representations made by the Allied Trades Council of New York, that Mr. Page is an opponent of organized labor. The resolution states that the London Trades Council strongly resents the appointment to the court of St. James of an ambassador who is a bitter opponent of organized labor in his own country, and requests President Wilson to recall the appointment and substitute for Mr. Page one who more truly represents the opinions of the working classes of the United States of America and who is more acceptable to the organized workers of the United Kingdom. The council also urges Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary, against receiving Mr. Page as the United States representative in this country.

Copies of the resolution were sent to President Wilson and Sir Edward Grey and a communication was sent to every labor council in the United Kingdom asking for similar action. Among other things the letter from the Allied Trades councils contains the statement that "Mr. Page is a member of a firm bitterly opposed to organized labor."

Mr. Page Starts on His Mission.

New York, May 16.—The new ambassador to the court of St. James, Walter Hines Page, sailed for his post in London yesterday. Until he can obtain a residence there Mr. Page will make his quarters at a hotel.

STORM'S TOLL COMPLETED

No More Deaths From Nebraska Cyclone Reported.

Lincoln, Neb., May 16.—Although all of the tornado-swept territory has not been heard from, it is believed that the eight deaths in the town of Seward complete the storm's toll. Twenty are injured at Seward, four near McCool Junction and six at other points. Three of those injured at Seward may die. The property loss there will approach $125,000.

The storm swept across a stretch of territory forty miles in length, but its path was very narrow, averaging not over a block in width. The only town hit was Seward, and there it plowed a small furrow through the poorer residence district. The number of fatalities was lessened by the fact that many were warned in time to escape to their cellars. The storm was remarkable in that it perpetrated few freaks, and that it took long jumps in its journey across country.

Dangers of the Streets.

The coming of warmer weather directs the minds of the people toward the outdoors. There is a common desire to get away from the shut up life of the winter. The children feel this impulse greater than older persons; the instinct to "get out" is strong with the young. And such is the sympathy of older persons that they wish to see the children at liberty. But there is danger in this liberty demanded by the young people and there is danger in too much "sympathy" being shown them. The coming of warmer weather calls attention to the dangers of the streets
—an ugly peril which every decent person wishes could be removed—and with the desire of the children to get out the responsibility of parents becomes greater.

Rushville is not immune from this transgression in the social life of the city. However, the efforts of the Civic Improvement and Social Service Association of Rushville are in the right direction and will tend to correct this evil. Their recent recommendations for public playground are commendable and should be encouraged. Speed the day when such a dream shall be realized in Rushville.

Give the child something else to do which interests him and the streets will be deserted by youth. Where amusements and desirable industry is not afforded elsewhere the lure of the down-town excitement continues an attraction even for the youngsters of tender years. Teaching the children to take an interest in gardening civic beautification and to make this a practical attraction, gives the youngsters a highly moral environment not to be overlooked.

Much has been written about the dangers of the street. But the warning that has been given parents is founded on facts. The streets of a city after night are perilous to boys and girls. Right here in Rushville it is easy for the young to go wrong.
The fathers and mothers of children should be watchful; they should exert a strict parental care. The responsibility resting on parents is an impressing one.

A Foolish Warning.

President Wilson announces that his administration is prepared to spend one million dollars to expose manufacturers who reduce operation

as a result of the new tariff law.
Chairman Underwood, of the ways and means committee, explains that the bureau of labor will send out detectives to show up any American manufacturer who may reduce wages or curtail operations to meet the new competition which the Wilson law will create, and gives fair warning that the department of justice will prosecute any man who closes his factory "in order to affect the result of next year's congressional elections." All of which is very foolish talk. No manufacturer with any common sense will want to wreck his business for any political consideration. They will want to go on making a success of their business and will do so if possible regardless of politics. The new law will create new conditions and it is not at all assured that American manufacturers can successfully meet them but everybody with common sense knows if they fail it will be because success is to their intelligent self-interest to do so and they will try to do it.
under the new order is impossible.
The Wilson-Underwood warnings are really very foolish.

If congress would post a man out on the steps to give the alarm when the President comes to the Capitol, not so many of them would get caught away from their desks.

While the ownership of the steam-roller passes from one hand to another, the model seems to differ but little from year to year.

President Wilson is going to Panama when congress is adjourned. If he waits until then every one else will have seen it first.

proved March 14, enacts "that hereafter all bridges erected or repaired on public highways, when the cost of erecting or repairing shall not exceed $100, shall be built by the township trustee and paid for out of the township road fund."

House Bill 722 (Chapter 286, approved March 15, amends Section 1
of Acts 1909, Page 263, in relation to gravel road improvements on township boundary lines. To the materials which may be used in improving such a road, is added "stone or other macadamizing material." And a proviso is added "that in laying out and improving, or improving any road or roads on or along township lines under this act, or under any other law in this state, that such road or roads may be laid out or changed in making improvements so as to vary from such township line or lines, whenever necessary in order to avoid bluffs, hills, ravines, or other obstacles not to exceed one-half mile, and such road or roads when so laid out and improved, or changed and improved under the provisions of this act or any other law of this state shall be considered."

Senate Bill 432 (Chapter 251),
approved March 14, amends Section
62 of the highway law (Burns, 1903, Section 7711). The amendment consists of adding brick, bitumen and macadam to the "stone, gravel, or other road material" with which highways may be improved by a county, and by adding the proviso
"that the rebuilding of free gravel or macadam highways shall be done in the same manner as the building or improvement of highways."

Senate Bill 147 (Chapter 183),
approved March 11, amends Section 72 of the act concerning highways as amended by Acts 1909, page 355,
in regard to its provisions for paying streets of cities and towns, as incidental to making highway improvements at the expense of taxpayers of the township. For the provision that the extra expense of an improvement in the city shall not be assessed on the taxpayers in general when such expense a mile is greater than the average expense.

Senate Bill 262 (Chapter 159),
approved March 8, amends three sections of the highway law. Section 63 (Burns' 1908, Section 7712) is amended by omitting from it the words "including any incorporated town or city in such township, having a population of less than thirty thousand inhabitants," not designating the townships to which it applies, and is made to apply to "any township in any county in the state."

House Bill 219 (Chapter 74), ap-
proved March 4, amends Section 45
of the highway act (Burns 1908, Section 7693), so as to make the law authorizing the purchase, construction of repair of bridges across streams forming the boundary lines of counties, so as to include "all cases where a stream crosses a public highway located on and forming the boundary line of two or more counties in this state, and where such stream requires a bridge of more than twenty feet in length, across the same and forming a part of such public highway."

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

FREE TRADE WITH CANADA.

(Lafayette Journal.)

European newspapers are watching the tariff discussion in this country with great interest. The thought of the United States being open for unrestricted European trade brings encouragement to Europe. The London Post, in commenting on the proposed removal of the tariff barrier, makes the statement that Canada did well to reject reciprocity, for if the pending tariff bill passes, "The Canadian farmers will be able to send their produce across the border without any concession to the United States." The above opinion reminds us of the mighty howl that arose when reciprocity with Canada was proposed. Canada rejected the proposed treaty because it was favorable to American farmers and industries.
But under the proposed law Canada will get more than was promised her by reciprocity without giving anything in return. It is admitted that Canada reciprocity contributed to Mr. Taft's unpopularity and was a leading factor in the opposition of his renomination. It has been said by political students that had it not been for proposed reciprocity with Canada and the suit against the United States steel corporation, there would have been no Bull Moose party. But Mr.
Wilson proposes more than Mr. Taft ever contemplated.

MILROY BOY IS AN ARTIST

Will Send Swell Carving to Eureka Club.

A neat piece of carving has been done by Clifford Scott of the Chase undertaking establishment, the entire work having been executed with an ordinary pocket knife, says the Logansport Pharos-Reporter. Mr. Scott was a former resident of Milroy, Ind., where he was a member of the Eureka club, composed of young men of that town who have well equipped club rooms. The carving is on a flat piece of poplar board about eighteen inches long by six inches wide, and displays the name of the club. The piece will be given the finishing touches and then be sent as a present to the club at Milroy.

A.W. JAMIESON IS AT ATLANTA ASSEMBLY

Pastor of the United Presbyterian Church Here Attending Important Session.

BRANCHES MAY BE UNITED

The Rev. A. W. Jamieson, pastor of the United Presbyterian church of this city, is attending the general assembly of the church which is in session at Atlanta, Ga., and will continue until Wednesday. He expects to visit in the East a few days, but will arrive here in time to fill the pulpit Sunday, May 25.

It is expected that the United Presbyterian church and the Presbyterian church, south, will federate. The Presbyterian church, south, and the Presbyterian church north, are holding their general assemblies at Atlanta at the same time, as does the United Presbyterian denomination. Plans will be discussed looking toward the federation of the three branches of the church, but doubt is expressed by local Presbyterians of the north division being able to reach a ground of agreement with the other two branches. The Whitewater presbytery of the Presbyterian church, north, has sent the Rev. T. W. McGuire of Newcastle as the clerical delegate and T. E. Leffingwell of Connersville as the lay delegate.

The Argyle Case

A Novelization by J. W. McConaughy of the Successful New Play by Harriet Ford, Harvey J. O'Higgins and Detective William J. Burns, in Which Robert Hilliard Is Appearing.

Copyright, 1912, by Journal-American-Examiner.

CHAPTER II.

Asche Kayton, Detective.

WHEN Bruce Argyle had read through to the last line of this story, he pulled out his watch and glanced at it. It was a few minutes past 4 o'clock. He was at Twenty-third street in the subway. He got out, crossed the street and boarded a train down, changing to an express at Fourteenth street. A few minutes later he was being shot up to the eighteenth floor of a tall office building in the financial district. Leaving the elevator, he followed the runner's directions and found an office door that bore the simple inscription:

ASCHE KAYTON.

Entering he found himself confronted by an oldish boy on the opposite side of the railing. Inside the railing were the rugs, settles and chairs of a comfortable anteroom. It might have been the publishing office of a religious weekly.

The boy respectfully asked his name and whom he wished to see. Argyle handed him his card.

"Mr. Kayton," he said. The boy opened a gate in the railing and invited him to sit down. As Argyle sank on to a chair the boy disappeared. In less than sixty seconds one of the many doors opening off the anteroom swung back and a man entered holding the card.

The room then looked more than ever like the office of a church newspaper. The newcomer was bareheaded, also bald headed, and wore a dark office coat over a black vest and trousers. His face was round, his eyes round and pleasant, his cheeks slightly pink and his expression one of the utmost benevolence. But his mouth was thin lipped and opened very little when he spoke.

"Mr. Argyle?" he said, with a nod and a smile.

"Yes," replied Bruce, rising, somewhat nonplused by this unexpected personage. "Mr.—" He paused.

"I am Mr. Leischmann, the manager of Mr. Kayton's New York office. Was your business with Mr. Kayton personal?" The tone was pleasantly businesslike.

"I wanted to see Mr. Kayton at once, if possible," said Bruce. Mr. Leischmann nodded as if he fully understood.

"About the —?"

Bruce nodded. "Yes," he replied. "Could you take the matter up with me or —?"

"I would prefer to see Mr. Kayton," insisted the young man politely. Mr. Leischmann gazed past him and cleared his throat.

"I think Mr. Kayton is planning to leave town this evening, but you might be able to see him before he goes," he said.

"Leave town! For how long?" demanded Bruce.

"I can't say," replied the manager. "If you will excuse me a moment I will see if I can get Mr. Kayton on the phone."

The young man sidged in the anteroom for three or four minutes until the manager returned to him, smiling benevolently.

"Mr. Kayton does not leave for an hour," he said, "and he will be pleased to have you call at his hotel at once."

After they had shaken hands Bruce gazed at the great crime expert curiously. He saw a man of possibly forty years, who looked younger. He was shaved with scrupulous care, his hair was brushed until each hair seemed to fit into its exact spot, his clothes fitted him perfectly and he looked as if he had been groomed for hours. His eyes were either brown or black, but they glowed or smoldered or sparkled so constantly that no one could tell. His nose was well formed, but not prominent, and the same was true of the line of jaw and chin. The mouth was at once strong and sensitive. The expression was one of placid repose, as if it had been cultivated to conceal the whirl of the volcanic mind behind it.

He Was Credited With Second Sight and All Sorts of Things.

Just as his subdued manner out perfectly concealed the tireless energy of the man.

"I am sorry I can give you only a few minutes," he said in a soft, pleasant voice without waiting for Bruce to state the nature of his errand.

"You want to consult me about that terrible affair of your father. Did you want me to look into it?"

"Yes," Bruce blurted out. The detective nodded.

"I see," he said. "Very well. I have carte blanche as to expense?"

"Certainly," replied Bruce instantly. "If you can throw any light on this awful thing you can spend all the money you please."

Mr. Kayton's lips twitched very slightly. "There is never any difficulty under those circumstances, Mr. Argyle," he said. "The trouble is in getting people to pay expenses when they can't see results. I furnish no guarantees."

Bruce gazed directly at him for a moment and then said slowly, "In asking you to take this case, Mr. Kayton, I was fully prepared to pay all the expenses of the investigation and pay you whatever fee you consider reasonable."

"We'll talk about the fee when I deliver the goods," replied the detective quietly. "I am sorry to dismiss you, but I have to catch a train."

"But I wanted you to begin at once," he protested.

"Impossible!" said Mr. Kayton shortly, buttoning his gloves.

"But—but—when?"

"I will be at your house at 9 o'clock in the morning," returned Mr. Kayton. Bruce drew a long breath of relief.

"You're not going far, then?"

"Only to Albany," replied Mr. Kayton. "I will return on the last train tonight."

Again that faint smile flickered across Mr. Kayton's face.

"Don't worry about the morning papers, Mr. Argyle," he said. "There will be news from Albany tonight that will make them forget about you."

"Well, you're to draw the curtains and air the room, are ye not?"

It was the morning after the interview just narrated, and Finley, the old butler of the Argyle household, glowered upon young Topp, the cockney footman. Bruce Argyle had given orders that the library should be opened and made ready for the reception of Mr. Kayton, and Topp was objecting.

"'Appen I am," he retorted sullenly. "But do I 'ave to do it alone, Mr. Finley, or do I 'ave 'elp?"

"What alls ye, Topp?" demanded the butler, though he knew well enough. They stood at the open door of the library.

"The same thing that's allin' you, likely," growled the footman. "I hain't goin' alone into the bloomin' tomb."

Finley eyed him in scorn. "Aw, ye're worse than the wimmin. What's to hurt ye? Come on in wit' ye!"

He strode bravely into the gloomy apartment and in the dim light stumbled over a chair. Topp suppressed a yell, and both stood shivering.

"What's that?" demanded the footman in a quivering voice.

"It's a chair," responded the butler, striving in vain to speak unconcernedly. "Sit down on it."

Topp shook his head and shivered again as he gazed about the darkened, massive room. "I hain't the sort o' bloke who sticks at a thing," he declared, "but I don't fancy a room where 'errors 'ave appened."

The older man had recovered his poise, and he boldly drew back the curtain and opened a window.

"Mister Argyle was as good a master as I've lived," he said cheerily. "Why shud ye be afear'd o' the place where he died?"

"E may have been a good man, Mister Finley—but 'e died a hunnatural death."

Finley snorted. "I'm thinkin' yer sinibilities are too refined for yer walk in life. Ye may be called upon to do worse things than to open the windies on th' scenes of murder—God willin'!"

Topp, in the meantime, had opened another window, and the draft from the two caused the door into the hall to swing softly to and shut with a click. Both men wheeled as if a pistol had gone off behind them.

"That's 'im!" yelled Topp. And the next instant he was down the hall, almost upsetting Bruce Argyle, who was coming to inspect the library.

"What's the matter with Topp," he demanded. Old man Finley gulped hard.

"It's his nerves, sir," he said unsteadily. "He's got the fear o' the room."

Young Argyle glanced about uncomfortably. "Oh," he said slowly. "Let in all the sunlight you can, Finley. There never were windows enough here."

He turned to another door that opened into the farther part of the house. "Is this door unlocked?"

"Not yet, sir."

Bruce unlocked it. The door opened immediately into a pretty sunlit morning room, and a soft voice hailed him from the window seat.

"Are you there, Bruce?"

"Yes. Come in, Nan."

In obedience to his summons there entered a dainty, blue-eyed damsel of about twenty-two, so finely and exquisitely molded that she looked like porcelain. She gave a timid glance about the interior of the room.

"Having this room opened."

Finley approached. "What time am I to expect the detective, sir?" he inquired.

"Any time, now," Bruce replied, and Finley withdrew with a bow.

"More detectives coming, Bruce?" asked the girl, with a little frown.

"Yes," he replied, with a nod, and added: "Asche Kayton."

"Oh," said the girl doubtfully. "Do you think he can do anything?"

"He's the greatest detective in the country," returned Argyle. "If he can't, nobody can. If we'd got him at first we wouldn't have had the thing all muddled up the way it is now, with suspicion on me and Mary and—everybody."

Miss Thompson shook her head, apparently lost between hopelessness and obstinacy.

"I don't believe it'll ever be found out who killed him," she declared.

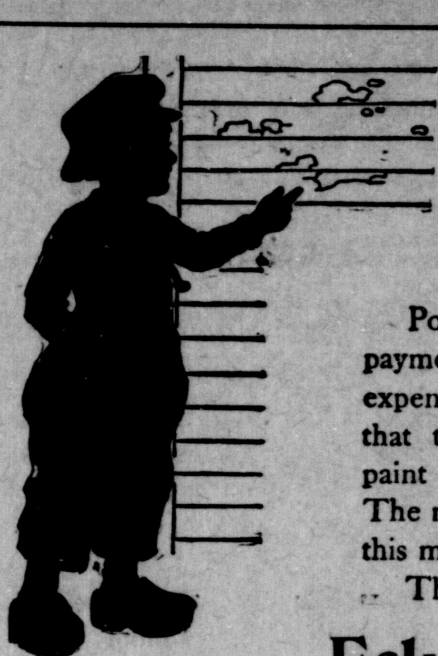

Argyle shrugged his shoulders impatiently. "If Kayton finds out enough to clear Mary that's all I ask," he said shortly. Instantly the girl's hand was on his arm and her eyes looked up into his troubled face in love and sympathy.

"Oh, Bruce, dear," she exclaimed softly, "nobody believes you or Mary had anything to do with it."

"Nobody that knows us, of course," said Argyle gravely. "But what about the people that read the newspapers and don't know us? How is Mary?"

"She's wonderful!" breathed the girl. "The way she keeps up! I'd go out of my mind! But she's so strange, Bruce. She hasn't said a word about your father since I came. She simply won't speak of it."

Bruce nodded, staring thoughtfully straight out before him.

NOT GOING TO BE CAUGHT NAPPING

Precautions Taken to Safeguard the Nation.

STRENGTHENING DEFENSES

It is Known in Washington That the President and His Advisers Are Gravely Concerned in the Task of Putting the Western Coast and Outlying Dependencies in a State of Preparedness for Any Eventuality.

Washington, May 16.—It has been learned that while the president and his official advisers are convinced that the issue raised by Japan over the California law will not seriously disturb the peaceful relations between the two governments, the administration is quietly taking such precautions as would safeguard the nation in the event of trouble arising out of the present situation.

President Wilson finds it difficult to conceive of the Japanese situation taking an unfortunate turn, yet apparently he feels that duty requires him not to ignore the existence of unexpected possibilities. Evidences point to the conclusion that the administration has decided that it would be an inexcusable mistake to expose the nation even to the possibility of consequences which might arise out of a state of unpreparedness.

The president accordingly held a conference with the officers in charge of the state, war and navy departments. The condition of the defenses of the United States were discussed and a tentative program for strengthening the effectiveness of these defenses outlined.

Independently of this White House meeting, but no less important in its revelations of the seriousness of the possibilities which lie in the present situation is the fact, it was disclosed, that two companies of the coast artillery corps have been ordered to Hawaii to man the coast defenses there. These two companies will sail from San Francisco on May 24. With the utmost secrecy other preparations are going ahead with the sole purpose of increasing the efficiency of the defenses of United States possessions.

There is no question about preparations being made by the navy along the same line as those under the direction of the war department, but orders have been issued that no ships be moved in such a way as to afford the slightest foundation for any suspicion that the movements are in the direction of preparations to meet an attack.

When Ambassador Chinda was furnished a copy of the message from Governor Johnson to Secretary Bryan he declined to make any comment on its contents. The drafting of the reply to Japan's protest has been begun by Counsellor Moore and was the chief subject of discussion at the cabinet meeting today.

Not Looking For Trouble.

Tokio, May 16.—The foreign office is optimistic as to the outcome of the controversy over the California alien land ownership legislation. In reply to an inquiry a high official said: "The negotiations between Japan and the United States are progressing satisfactorily. We expect to reach a friendly and permanent solution of the difficulty."

A GET-TOGETHER MOVEMENT

Presbyterians of Differing Shades Meet on Common Ground.

Atlanta, Ga., May 16.—The Rev. Dr. John Timothy Stone, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church of Chicago, was elected moderator of the Northern Presbyterian general assembly. The Rev. Dr. J. Sprole Lyons of Louisville was elected moderator of the Southern Presbyterian assembly. Dr. Robert M. Russell of Westminster college at New Wilmington, Pa., was elected moderator of the United Presbyterian assembly.

There is much speculation as to whether these bodies and the Associate Reformed synod, all in session here, and all holding to the Westminster confession, will unite in a joint declaration setting forth beliefs in which all concur. Many commissioners think there will be such a declaration, but do not think there will be organic union.

Last night the first of the Pan-Presbyterian pentecostal meetings was held, and 2,000 commissioners from the four churches attended the first joint meeting in the history of the assemblies.

Peace Delegates Facing a Full Program of Entertainment at Chicago.

Chicago, May 16.—The peace delegates to the centenary of the treaty of Ghent, who are in America in connection with the proposed celebration of the 100th anniversary of peace among English-speaking peoples, have arrived in Chicago from Philadelphia.

The visitors were greeted at the station by a large delegation, representing the Chicago Association of Commerce, the Hamilton club and the city government, and immediately a program of entertainment which will occupy fully the time of the delegates was begun.

Stickney Gasoline Engines ARE THE BEST

Why?

Why do catalog house 3 horse-power engines weigh 425 pounds and the Stickney 3 horse-power weigh 1275 pounds without an ounce to spare—Stickney gives you three-thirds of an engine—This is how the catalog house divides.

SIZES OUR JOHN UP AS LOCAL BOSS

and when Dr. Parsons read over that list he saw that it was political pull and spoils that was behind the mayor's slate. Only one or two were fit for the places to which the mayor proposed to appoint them.

The three Democratic councilmen and the members of the city administration held a caucus and sought to bind Dr. Parsons to the slate as prepared by Mayor Black and his brother-in-law boss John Kelly. But Dr. Parsons would not stand for that. He said boldly that he was favorable to giving the Democrats the offices, but they must be worthy of the offices, must not be peanut politicians and ward heelers, with nothing to recommend them but their skill in manipulating votes or the indorsement of a party boss, and if the mayor attempted to put the slate through he would smash it.

Then it was discovered that Dr. Parsons and the Republican members had an understanding, and the doctor held the power in the council. Dr. Parsons agreed to two men that Mayor Black wished appointed, because they were better men than those holding the jobs, but he absolutely refused to allow the mayor and his brother-in-law, boss Kelly, to rip up the fire department or dismiss A. T. Mahin, the superintendent of the city water and light plant, simply because he was a Republican.

It was agreed on every hand that Mahin was a competent man, had built the plant up from a wreck and was giving the city good service, and Dr. Parsons objected to his removal in order to make a place for some precinct committeeman who was not competent for the place. He was willing that a Democrat should have Mr. Mahin's job, but the Democrat must be as competent as Mr. Mahin was, and until that man was found Mahin should stay. He did stay until a short time ago when, during the absence of Dr. Parsons in California, the machine discharged Mr. Mahin and put in his place Frank Brown, a gasfitter, who was the engineer at the plant and without any training whatever in electrical machinery, but who is strong in precinct organization.

Before the Black administration was elected all the Democratic candidates pledged themselves in signed articles in the newspapers that they would bring about reforms in the administration of the city affairs and especially would they see that the liquor laws were enforced.

Rush county voted "dry" by about two thousand three hundred, and this included the city of Rushville, as the election was under the county option law. The saloons became "soft drink parlors," and there were just about as many drunken men as ever. One night after the council meeting Dr. Parsons suggested that the city administration ought to take up the question of these "soft drink parlors" because they were simply saloons, he said. O. C. Norris, who was a member of the last legislature and stood for the machine always, was a Democratic councilman, and he remarked: "Oh, they don't hurt me. I am going to let them alone."

"But you promised what you would do before you were elected," declared Dr. Parsons.

"That's just politics," said Norris, with a laugh, and left the room.

Then Dr. Parsons insisted that Mayor Black fulfill his ante-election pledges. "You laid down on me on my appointments, and you can run the thing yourself" was all the satisfaction that came from the mayor.

And Dr. Parsons did take it up. He obtained samples of the "dry beer" sold in places, took them to the state chemist at Indianapolis and had them analyzed, then went before the Rush county grand jury with his evidence and indictments were returned against the keepers of the places. They were fined $50 and costs and thirty days in jail, but at the request of Dr. Parsons the court suspended the thirty days.

When the city became "wet" there were six saloons, three Democrats and three Republicans, and they obeyed the law—not that the city administration forced them to obey the law, but because the saloon men themselves saw that the law was obeyed. Recently the city voted "dry" again and every saloon keeper quit the business—no more soft drink parlors nor any more dry beer. They found that even if it so desired the city administration could not protect them.

These are just illustrations of the way the Black administration tried to do things, and when the things that it tried to do were for the interests of the people, Dr. Parsons stood by the mayor. When the administration tried to play gang politics, Dr. Parsons and his Republican allies saw that the game was not played. And, of course, the machine has it in good and strong for Dr. Parsons—but he does not care—he has lived here thirty-five years and the people of Rushville know him.

To show the ingratitude of the Thomas Taggart-Crawford Fairbanks machine, it is necessary to go back a little. Frank Hall of this city, wished to be Lieutenant-Governor. John Kelly, the local boss was his manager and John went to Indianapolis to see Mr. Taggart. John and Tom had a conference in that little room just off the lobby of the Denison, and what occurred there is unknown, but Tom got behind Mr. Hall and he was nominated. He was elected and the service that Mr. Hall rendered as president of the senate to the machine is of such recent date that it need not be repeated. Senators Kistler and Stotsenberg (Dems.) Senator Will R. Wood and Ralph Kane (Reps) assisted by the Lieutenant-Governor, formed a combination in the upper house that no one could beat. John Kelly was sergeant-at-arms of that session and rendered valuable assistance to the machine.

Then the friends of Frank Hall here suggested him for governor and many in this district would have stood by him. Mr. Hall's friends were informed that the machine had framed it up for Samuel M. Ralston of Lebanon, and the machine objected to any opposition to Mr. Ralston's nomination.

Hall's managers were told to go to Indianapolis and there they had a conference with Mr. Ralston and also with Gilbert H. Hendren, and were told that the best thing Hall could do was to get out of the way—and he did. And Hall never did get anything from the machine after that. His usefulness was gone; he was no longer Lieutenant-Governor, could not appoint committees or preside over the Senate and so he was made to walk the plank.

But that's the way the machine works—it is not what you were, but what you are with it.

The last legislature passed a law making Rush county a separate judicial circuit, and there was a rush for the job of being judge down here—the appointment to be made by Governor Ralston. The most prominent candidate was John Megee, who for years has been a water carrier and a wood chopper for the Taggart machine—who has been promised place after place, and was always dumped. The machine was getting ready to dump him again, but Megee's friends took up the fight for him and demanded that he be appointed and to avoid trouble Megee was appointed. Megee is a good lawyer, a good citizen, and the longer you know him the better you like him. But he would not have been appointed had not his friends made such a determined stand in his behalf, and the machine was afraid that if Megee were turned down again it would result in the machine going to smash here. John Megee was made judge here because the machine was afraid for political reasons not to have him appointed. So that is the machine here. It is just like the machine at Indianapolis. It is part of the Indianapolis machine and works just the same way. And that is why the people of this city, regardless of politics, are anxious to have a real business man at the head of their city affairs, and are working hard to bring that situation about.

The part of the Indianapolis machine that is located in Rushville is as dead as a last year's bird's nest. It overbet its hand, just as the machine at Indianapolis is getting ready to do.

ELECTED MEMBER PRESS CLUB.

Ross Williams of Dunreith, a junior of Earlham, has been elected a member of the Press club. This is the most exclusive organization in the college. It requires a unanimous ballot to elect a member, and the candidate does not even know he is being voted on, thus precluding all electioneering and "college politics."
